

Marc Landgraf
Head of Market Lufthansa Group
Partner

Marc Landgraf is our main contact for the Lufthansa Group and heads our solution group Organization & Strategy. He is a specialist in airline strategy, passenger ground handling and services, process analysis, process optimization and organizational development, with many years of airline experience.

From 2008 to 2012, he was as Director Airline Restructuring responsible in multiple restructuring projects. As a project manager, Marc was involved in the reorganization of airlines in the Middle East and Africa, while enhancing processes and organizational design according to best industry practice. His comprehensive understanding of finance, operations management and human resource management issues was instrumental in achieving growth targets for third party business at Global Load Control in Cape Town and Lufthansa's ground operations in Düsseldorf. In 2012, he took over responsibility as the Head of the in-house consulting and is Partner at Lufthansa Consulting, steering the projects within the Lufthansa Group.

Marc turned his keen interest in aviation to practice in Lufthansa's business planning unit in Düsseldorf while completing his degree in Business Administration. His first mission after graduating was to restructure the passage sector at the Düsseldorf hub.

Marc Landgraf is fluent in German and English.
