

Alexander Manakos

Partner

Alexander Manakos is one of the Partners at Lufthansa Consulting. He is responsible for the business in the Middle East. He has worked in the consulting business for more than ten years specializing in restructuring, business planning & development, and air cargo. His experience includes projects for airlines in the Middle East and Africa, like EgyptAir, Saudi Airlines, Oman Air, Gulf Air and also international airports, like e.g. Cairo Airport

Prior to joining us in 2000, Alexander worked for Lufthansa Cargo's Service Development division in Frankfurt, where he implemented a new service concept in 1998. In 1999 he was given product management responsibility for Lufthansa Cargo's time definite service in the standard cargo segment.

When he came to Lufthansa Consulting, Alexander hit the ground running with several international assignments. His first project in Africa was the restructuring of Air Gabon's cargo business in Libreville. In 2004, he transferred to Chicago as General Manager The Americas to oversee Lufthansa Cargo Charter's business in that part of the world. Upon his return to Lufthansa Consulting he managed several large scale projects in Egypt, prior to setting-up Lufthansa Consulting's Sales Office in Dubai, where he served as Director Sales Middle East & Africa. In mid-2010, Alexander was appointed Principal Air Cargo to head Lufthansa Consulting's cargo activities. Since mid-2012 Alexander is responsible for our business in the Middle East.

Alexander is fluent in German and English.
